Pulse of Life Scholarship Program

The Health of Palestine... Our Responsibility

About the Program:

"Pulse of Life" is a bold national initiative launched by the Isnad Foundation, aiming to provide 1,000 full scholarships in medicine and health sciences to Palestinian students inside and outside Palestine—especially in rare and critical specializations. The program is designed to run over a period of 5 years.

Why Pulse of Life?

01 SHORTAGE OF MEDICAL PERSONNEL

There is a severe shortage of qualified healthcare professionals, which hinders the delivery of adequate quality care in healthcare institutions.

02 LACK OF SPECIALIZED FIELDS

The local healthcare system lacks specialized medical fields, forcing patients to seek treatment outside the Ministry of Health facilities.

03 SHORTAGE IN HOSPITAL CAPACITY

The shortage of hospital beds has placed immense pressure on healthcare facilities, leading to a significant increase in occupancy rates beyond safe operational capacity.

04 POOR HEALTHCARE INFRASTRUCTURE

A large number of medical devices are non-functional, and the necessary resources to operate facilities efficiently are lacking.

05 IMPACT OF THE ISRAELI OCCUPATION

Since 2023, systematic Israeli attacks have led to the martyrdom of many medical personnel and the disabling of numerous health centers, severely undermining healthcare service capacity.

Our Goals

- Train 1,000 students in medicine and health sciences through full scholarships.
- Support local healthcare by integrating graduates into the system.
- Reach underserved areas through mobile clinics and awareness efforts.

Pulse of Life Scholarship offers financial support through three main pillars

Covers the cost of medical and health sciences education, with an average annual support of $5,600 per student.

Monthly financial assistance averaging $200 to support essential housing and living expenses for the student, totaling $2,400 annually.

A one-time grant of $300 to cover the cost of a laptop, tablet, or smartphone based on the student's academic needs.
